Interview questions:

1. What do you do?
   “For work, I support multiple departments in my retail job and do pharmaceutical deliveries on the side. I also experiment with website design in my free time.

2. Hobbies?
   “I attend art shows, I am very passionate about all things art, whether it be paintings or digital, I love all forms of art. Playing video games is also one of my hobbies. I also rock climb in my free time.”

3. Biggest achievement?
   “My biggest achievement was completing my academic career when I graduated from my technical institute with a bachelor’s degree in computer science.”

4. Goals?
   “I want to create websites that provide great accessibility for users with disabilities. I also want to move out with my cat and get a nice house near the beach.”

5. What motivates you?

“My cat Noodle. She motivates me every day to be a better person and to keep going.”

6. Have you ever competed in any sports?
   “Yes! I was on my high school varsity swimming team. It helped me get a lifeguard certification while I was there.”

7. Challenges you’ve faced?
   “It has been difficult to balance work and personal life, since I work two jobs, and one is full-time, and the other is when I have days off. It has been really challenging, but I have managed to make it work.”

8. What is your favorite memory?
   “My favorite memory is when I saw my favorite artist, Melanie Martinez, in concert. It was for her new album, “Hades,” on the day of its release. The energy of the crowd was insane, something I had never experienced before, and it gave me a whole new outlook on concerts.”

9. Which fictional character meant a lot to you growing up and has inspired you or left an impact on your life?
   “The character Steven Universe, from Steven Universe. He was very relatable, and he covered many themes in the LGBT community and interpersonal family conflicts. It was very important to me.”

10. Where do you see yourself in 5 years?
    “Living my dream job in New York City with my cat Noodle. Creating websites and helping companies improve their accessibility design.”

Bio:

Matthew Peifer is a deeply passionate person who cares about the arts and helping those with disabilities. He loves all forms of art, paintings, drawings, and digital art. This includes other forms of art, such as music and video games. When he is not attending art shows, he is also a gamer. He is very invested in virtual reality gaming, the cool things you can do in these games, and their user interface design. When he is not doing either of these, he likes to go rock climbing. Not to be confused with outdoor rock climbing, but indoor rock climbing. The rock climbing he does is called bouldering: you are not attached to any safety gear, but there is a crash mat below you if you fall, and the climbs are at a safe height.

A graduate of the Rochester Institute of Technology, he wants to utilize his degree in computer science to create websites for companies that provide accessibility and functionality for people with disabilities. He believes websites should have simple, user-friendly designs for everyone, especially those with disabilities. While in college, he learned sign language to help people with hearing disabilities. He believes everyone deserves to use the website, including people with disabilities. “The library is available to everyone, so the internet should be as well.”

He is currently working two jobs to build up enough funds to move to New York City and live there. Finding a job in the technical and computer field is difficult where he currently lives, so once he is able to move out and support himself, he will be able to find more job opportunities aligned with his goals. It has been difficult since graduating, but the one thing that motivates him the most is his cat Noodle, whom he loves very much and looks to as a reason to keep going.
